GREENHUT-SIEGEL COOPER CO

The City's Greatest Department Store Opens Tomorrow With the City's Greatest Sale

New York has never seen anything like this before. It is more than merely the opening of a new store; it is the writing of a new chapter in the retail economics of the country's chief retail center.

New stores have opened before—and have flourished or have faded in the pan, according to their deserts. Old stores have rebuilt, have expanded or closed out. But this event has no exact parallel, either in circumstance or in importance to the buying public.

Two great, successful, popular stores have combined into one gigantic establishment, forming the largest department store in New York. This in itself is interesting, but what counts far more is the fact that this combination not only offers the greatest amount of convenience for the public, but presents economies that affect the purse of every man and woman within a hundred miles.

The old Siegel Cooper Store, although one of the largest in the world, had become too small for the patronage you gave it. Across the street the store of Greenhut & Co., although recently enlarged, found it impossible to make room for the additional departments that its customers were demanding. Both stores were largely under the same ownership. The problem in each was to find MORE ROOM.

It being impracticable to secure more ground space for either, the problem was solved by COMBINING THE TWO. Henceforth the former Siegel Cooper Store (now called our MAIN BUILDING) and the former Greenhut & Co. store (now called our GREENHUT BUILDING) are ONE store, under ONE management and under ONE name—THE GREENHUT-SIEGEL COOPER CO. STORE.

All the home-outfitting goods—Furniture, Carpets, Rugs, Upholstery, Curtains, Pictures, China and Glassware, Kitchenware, etc., formerly sold in what is now our MAIN BUILDING, are concentrated in our GREENHUT BUILDING. No other goods are carried there, and that building becomes the largest and most perfectly stocked and equipped home-outfitting store in the city.

All the Dry Goods and Wearing Apparel formerly sold in Better Goods for the Same Money or the Same Goods for Less Money Here Than Elsewhere

We open the new Greenhut-Siegel Cooper Store tomorrow with a sale that befits the occasion. Just as New York has never known such a combination of stores and advantages, so, too, has it never known such a sale as will mark their presentation.

We shall have no bands, no souvenirs, no expensive and useless decorations. We put the money that they would cost into what you will prefer—VALUES.

Charge Accounts

There are many conveniences about having a charge account with an establishment of the wide scope of the Greenhut-Siegel Cooper Co. It will give us pleasure to open such accounts with all responsible persons.

Bills are rendered on the first day of each month, covering purchases made during the preceding month.

Arrangements may be made at the Department of Accounts, in our MAIN Building, mezzanine floor.

both stores are now concentrated in our MAIN BUILDING, utilizing the space gained by moving the home outfitting out. This gives the enormous space of our MAIN BUILDING exclusively to Dry Goods and Apparel for men, women and children, and to the Groceries and the Restaurant.

The change has permitted great expansion in our MAIN BUILDING. In some cases department space has been trebled—in all cases ample room and ample lighting have been given. Fixtures, equipment and organization have been renewed, increased and perfected. The result—after many months of study and preparation—will be fully apparent for the first time tomorrow.

You will find, for example, the entire first floor (over two acres) devoted to Wearing Apparel and Millinery for women, girls and children. This makes a superb specialty store in itself—as large as any, if not the largest in the country. Also the largest and best stocked Silk Store in Greater New York.

The Shoe Store is on the second floor and one-third larger than before. The Men's Clothing Store, on this floor, is nearly double its former size, as are also the Sporting Goods Store and the Hat Store.

On the third floor are to be found the Grocery Store, the Wine and Liquor Store and the Tea Room.

On the fourth floor you will find the store devoted to Trunks, Suit Cases, Books, Stationery, Talking Machines, Pianos, Sewing Machines, Toys and Music enjoying greatly enlarged space, while the new Book Store has almost twice the room it had before.

And on the main floor the Notions, Drugs, Washable Fabrics and Dress Goods are given the additional space they needed.

In the basement are Horse Goods, Blankets, Flannels, Comforters, Low-Priced Wash Goods, Domestic, Muslins, Sheetings, Bedding, Restaurant, etc.

And, in all these enlarged stores, the STOCKS are greatly broadened in variety and enhanced in value-for-price.

What we open is, in simple truth, a new store, but one that enjoys the confidence of the public built on many years of squaring promise to performance. New in space, in stocks, in equipment and in energy, the same old policy survives—

40 J.N. Green Trading Stamps Free Every Day This Week.

This distribution will be made in the new and beautiful Sperry & Hutchinson Premium Parlor in our Greenhut Building. The 40 stamps will be given to all who wish to start new books.

An unusually fine opportunity to start new books. The premiums are more varied and more valuable than ever before. By all means visit the Premium Parlor in our Greenhut Building tomorrow.
